Introduction

Ikon, Birmingham’s internationally acclaimed contemporary art gallery, announces plans for 2020-21: exhibitions, off-site projects and events that represent Ikon’s ongoing dedication to showcasing the very best of British and international contemporary art.

Highlights include shows entirely of new work by Birmingham-born John Newling and Australian Indigenous artists Judy Watson and Yhonnie Scarce, a major survey of the 1990s seen through the lens of Ikon’s exhibition programme, a UK debut for internationally acclaimed Czech artist Krištof Kintera and a much anticipated retrospective of work by Lahore-based Aisha Khalid.

In addition we will present the third annual Migrant Festival and continue to work off-site at HMP Grendon, Buckinghamshire and across the canal network with Slow Boat. Ikon’s international profile is enhanced with collateral projects at the Venice Biennale and Lahore Biennale, whilst a number of Ikon exhibitions tour nationally and internationally.

Meanwhile Ikon looks further forward, to 2022, when we will present the first UK exhibition of works by the 15th century Italian master Carlo Crivelli. Funded by the inaugural Ampersand Foundation Award, the exhibition will comprise major loans from a number of museums including the National Gallery in London.

Meryl McMaster

As Immense as the Sky

4 December 2019 – 23 February 2020

Part of a rising generation of indigenous artists in Canada, Meryl McMaster’s photography explores identity and its distinct cultural landscapes with extraordinary visual impact. For Ikon, McMaster (b. 1988, Ottawa) shows new and recent work, drawing on the artist’s dual heritage to examine broader questions of being, placing emphasis on the social, cultural and environmental contact zones of both her indigenous and European ancestors.

“I want to bring specific awareness to the broad consequences of colonisation and how the mentality of greed and/or lack of foresight is still impacting us today. At the same time, my work isn’t intended to resolve this dilemma but rather to create an opportunity for introspection and conversation. Each of us has a complicated relationship with the past with gaps and biases, and it is important to me to expose and explore these gaps so that we may encounter our next moments better prepared.”

Meryl McMaster
Ikon presents a major exhibition of a selection of new paintings by Birmingham-born artist John Walker (b. 1939), recently described as “one of the standout abstract painters of the last 50 years” (Cate McQuaid, Boston Globe, 2014).

Having studied in Birmingham at the Moseley School of Art, and later the Birmingham College of Art, Walker was the first artist to show at Ikon Gallery when it moved in 1972 to new premises in the Birmingham Shopping Centre above New Street Station. Ikon’s exhibition reveals an artist now at the height of his powers, featuring “anti-scenic” paintings inspired by the coastal landscapes of Maine where Walker now lives.

The freedom with which he is painting, and the edgy beauty he achieves as a result, give rise to an artistic experience of colours and graphic rhythms that are fresh and refreshing.
An exhibition of work by Birmingham-born artist John Newling (b.1952) - a pioneer of public art with a social purpose, his works explore the natural world and social and economic systems.

At the heart of Ikon’s exhibition is A language from the garden (Nymans language) (2017), a grid of marble slabs on the floor, reminiscent at once of teaching aids for children and sculptures by Carl Andre. Each slab is inscribed with plant forms Newling found at Nymans, a National Trust garden in West Sussex, that resemble letters in the modern English alphabet - hence Nymans Language, an officially registered downloadable font. On a wall nearby it spells out verses from the first chapter of Genesis referring to humanity subduing the Earth.

Recently Newling has been making Soil Books with soil from his back garden to embody the idea of the Anthropocene, our current geological age in which human impact is evident. He refers to us “signing our names in the soil” and is determined to grasp “what is it to know that we have affected the effects of nature/our environment ...”.

Judy Watson
4 March – 31 May 2020

Australian Indigenous artist Judy Watson (b. 1959) shows new paintings, video and installation, exemplifying her interest in sacred sites in the light of her family history.

Watson has recently travelled to see sites of prehistorical significance in the UK – standing stones, circles and hill figures, e.g. Avebury, Uffingham, Stonehenge – suggesting a more balanced and sustainable relationship between humanity and the rest of the natural world. It chimes in with a description of her most recent gallery exhibition in Australia: “exploring Indigenous strength and resilience in the face of climate change and other pressures”.

Exhibition organised by Ikon Gallery and TarraWarra Museum of Art with consultant curator Hetti Perkins.
Yhonnie Scarce
9 April - 31 May 2020

Yhonnie Scarce was born in Woomera, South Australia, and belongs to the Kokatha and Nukunu peoples - like Judy Watson, family history is central to Scarce's work, drawing on the strength of her ancestors.

Working with glass, Scarce explores the political nature and aesthetic qualities of the material – in particular corresponding to the crystallisation of desert sand as a result of British nuclear tests on her homeland during 1956-63. Birmingham is ideal for Scarce’s residency, due to its proximity to traditional UK centres of glass manufacturing and in addition the University of Birmingham was the location for most of the scientific research undertaken in the UK during World War II, which subsequently led to the unleashing of the atom bomb.

The outcome of Scarce's residency is presented in Ikon's Tower Room. Organised by Ikon Gallery and TarraWarra Museum of Art with consultant curator Hetti Perkins.
Ikons in the 1990s

12 June – 6 September 2020

Donald Rodney, In the House of My Father (1997)

The fourth in a series of surveys of Ikons artistic programme, this exhibition is a review of the 1990s. Comprising work by artists who featured in exhibitions and other projects at the gallery in John Bright Street during the period 1989-1997 and then at Ikons current premises in Brindleyplace until 1999.

Elizabeth Macgregor was Ikons Director at this time and the exhibition programme became more international in its outlook, placing particular emphasis on the Americas and subsequently Australia, whilst also featuring a number of group exhibitions, with themes derived from current affairs.

Artists include: Edward Allington / Basil Beattie / Zarina Bhimji / Adam Chodzko / Juan Davila / Mark Dion / Eugenio Dittborn / Ellen Gallagher / Simryn Gill / Antony Gormley / Victor Grippo / Callum Innes / Ilya Kabakov / Permindar Kaur / Seydou Keita / Rose Finn Kelcey / Tania Kovats / Lisa Milroy / Avis Newman / Lucia Nogueira / Vong Phaophanit / Adrian Piper / Keith Piper / Donald Rodney / Martha Rosler / Yinka Shonibare / Nancy Spero / Georgina Starr / Amikam Toren / Suzanne Treister / Shelagh Wakeley / Maxine Walker / Mark Wallinger / John Yeadon
The Migrant Festival
18-21 June 2020

Ikon presents the third annual Migrant Festival – a four day programme mixing visual art, music, film and performance. Coinciding with Ikons 90s exhibition, The Migrant Festival celebrates the contribution made by refugees and migrants to Birmingham and the UK, whilst bearing witness to the hardships and sacrifices involved.

Ikons 2019 festival included a talk with artist Hew Locke and Rt. Hon. David Lammy MP, focusing on the campaign for Windrush British Citizens, and an introduction to the Stuart Hall Archive at the University of Birmingham. Designer Osman Yousefzada staged a second fashion parade, between Selfridges and Ikons, and Celebrating Sanctuary held concerts with Haitian and Syrian musicians.
Krištof Kintera
16 September – 22 November 2020

This will be the first UK survey of work by internationally acclaimed Czech artist Krištof Kintera (b. 1973, Prague). It will include new installations for both the gallery and off-site.

Krištof Kintera’s artistic practice, crafted with black humour and ironic language audaciously digs into politically charged issues. The artist formulates inventive social criticisms that provide food for thought and expose the dark sides of our contemporary societies. In Kintera’s activist works, triviality and fatality coexist to denounce the inherent absurdity in hypercapitalist systems and ecological destruction.
Aisha Khalid (b. 1972, Lahore) is one of Pakistan’s most prominent contemporary artists. Schooled in traditional miniature painting, she has become a leading figure in developing the medium for modern audiences and attitudes. More recently she has turned to larger paintings, murals and installations.

Ikon’s exhibition exemplifies the fundamental propositions of Khalid’s artistic practice, touching on themes of gender and conflict. New work, shown for the first time, appropriates the imagery of traditional miniatures depicting battle scenes and other acts of violence, while removing all human figures. Khalid aestheticises her tough subject matter and refers to taboos of representational art, whilst also referencing typically feminine crafts such as textiles and needlework, with a focus on repeated geometric patterns taken from traditional Islamic designs, combined with floral motifs.
Ikon is delighted to announce winning the inaugural £125,000 Ampersand Foundation Award, which will enable the gallery to realise its dream of staging an exhibition of works by the 15th century master Carlo Crivelli. The Trustees of the National Gallery in London have agreed to lend four masterpieces by Crivelli for Ikon’s presentation in Spring 2022.

This announcement comes as Jonathan Watkins marks 20 years as Ikon Director: “An exhibition of work by the 15th century painter Carlo Crivelli is not only a dream come true for Ikon, but also something that I have always really wanted to do. Since being an undergraduate I have been fascinated by Crivelli, at once very ‘traditional’ in a northern Italian style but pointing towards a postmodern art historical future unlike any other pre-modern artist. In other words, arguably, Carlo Crivelli was as radical as Magritte.”

Ikon Slow Boat
2017-2020

A converted narrow boat, Slow Boat is crewed by Ikon Youth Programme as a unique floating space for live performances, film screenings, a site for installation, a social space for hospitality and talks, theatrical events, and HQ for ‘guerrilla’ activity in locations en route and online. In 2019, Ikon celebrated 20 years of working on the canals.

To mark the end of Slow Boat’s current cycle, Looping the Loop, in March 2020 we will hold a symposium highlighting key partnerships with Canal & River Trust, Women with Hope and Celebrating Sanctuary, and participatory projects with artists Justin Wiggan, Claudia Losi and the Idle Women.

Looping the Loop is supported by Arts Council Strategic Touring, Michael Marsh Charitable Trust, W.A. Cadbury Trust, Sandwell Metropolitan Borough Council, Canal & River Trust and Grantham Yorke Trust.
Art at HMP Grendon

2019–2022

Birmingham born artist Dean Kelland is Ikon's artist in residence for the next three years at HMP Grendon, Buckinghamshire, Europe's only wholly therapeutic prison. Funded by the Marie-Louise von Motesiczky Charitable Trust, his appointment follows Edmund Clark's residency (2014-2019).

Art at HMP Grendon is an extraordinary opportunity for the development of artistic practice for both Kelland and the prison community. In consultation with the artist, prison residents will continue to make and submit work to the Koestler Awards – through Koestler Arts, the UK's leading prison arts charity - as well as holding annual exhibitions at HMP Grendon. The residency runs alongside a public programme of research symposiums and events at Ikon, allowing a platform for public discourse on arts practice and criminal justice.
